

WOMEN OF BALI

The dance goes on, mostly for neighbors and villagers. Without sightseers, the dances have regained much of their original meaning and gaiety.

In contrast to the dancing girl and the grace of the dancers, Balinese girls march in high boots and green uniforms, sometimes carrying rifles. Many of the girls enlist eventually in the army or territorial forces.

City women are covered up but out in the country there still persists the topless mode that was commonplace in this land centuries before San Francisco ever thought of it.

At a marketplace in a village an elderly woman carries some farm produce in a hand woven basket.

Of all the isles that haunt the dreams of men, Bali occupies a special place.

The enchantments of its dancers, of its comely, high-breasted maidens, of its lush vegetation and its location among the spice islands of the East have by no means been wiped out by the horrors of massacre and fratricide that followed the collapse of the attempted communist coup in Indonesia.

Bali of course is an integral part of Indonesia. Not as long as New York's Long Island, and only a third larger in area, it supports more than a million inhabitants—slight and graceful people largely of Hindu and Javanese extraction.

Few tourists see Bali now but these pictures, taken mostly in recent months, help you visualize the life of women there now.

Religion is interwoven deeply into all aspects of life on Bali. Religious processions are numerous Village children carry gravel on pans atop their heads for four miles to help build their own school. No truck was available.

Village girls carry arrangements of flowers, fruits and food to temple.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Mickey Rooney has filed a cross complaint in Los Angeles Superior Court seeking annulment of his three-month marriage to the former Margaret Lane, his sixth wife, on grounds she used "premeditated fraud" to get him to marry her.

In his action Wednesday, Rooney, 46, requested a divorce on grounds of mental cruelty if he is unable to get an annulment.

Florida Gov. Seems Headed for the Altar

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Claude Kirk appears headed for the altar with a dazzling Brazilian.

Kirk, Florida's first Republican governor since 1876, took his oath of office Tuesday. He immediately stunned Florida's predominantly Democratic legislature by calling for a special session to revamp the state's proposed new constitution. Critical reaction soon was forthcoming.

Then the handsome, twice-divorced Kirk created a social uproar at his inaugural ball Tuesday night when he appeared with a blonde, German-born socialite from Brazil. Speculation that Kirk and Miss Erika Mittfeld would wed was confirmed Thursday when her former husband said the wedding date would be Jan. 30.

Carlos Eduardo Dolabella, a Brazilian theatrical producer, said in Rio de Janeiro that he and Miss Mittfeld had been legally separated since 1963. He said she probably had gotten a divorce in the United States.

Kirk left the day after his inauguration for a vacation at an undisclosed spot. Miss Mittfeld, who maintains a Florida home at Palm Beach, also was unreachable and apparently was with the governor.

Before leaving, Kirk, 40, was asked about the possibility of marriage. "I'll let you know if there's any real news," was his reply.

Kirk's aides refused to divulge his whereabouts and had no comment when asked about a possible marriage.

But former in-laws of both Kirk and Miss Mittfeld confirmed that the couple would soon wed.

HELEN HENNESSY'S BOUTIQUE

At 19, Lori Till designed sportswear and made a lot of money. She thought it would be fun to own a yacht, so she bought a 60-footer (Eugene DuPont was the former owner) and a yacht basin to go with it. Doesn't everyone?

She discovered that it took more than just "some money" to run the boat or even to keep it in drydock. She went bankrupt, sold it and went back to work.

For several years she continued to design sportswear and soon she had some money again. So, undaunted and ready for another adventure, Lori bought out Casino Classics, the firm she designed for, and continued to design beautiful sportswear.

Unfortunately, she discovered it took more than designing talent to run a successful business. She had little talent for administration and the eyes in the back of her head weren't developed. So garments disappeared before they were shipped. Piece goods and findings (buttons, trimmings, etc.) simply vanished. Shipments were late and payments were slow. Business was growing, but it died in spite of its growth. And Lori was broke again.

She threw in the sponge and closed the firm to switch her talents to designing robes and loungewear but this time she worked for someone else.

In adapting her feeling for sportswear to the robe and loungewear field, Lori revolutionized and revitalized the entire loungewear industry and was a pioneer in what is now known as at-home wear.

After three years of designing for three different firms, Lori Till decided to take the plunge again and go into business for herself once more. She rented space on Madison Avenue, which is to the loungewear business what Seventh Avenue is to the garment industry. Today her firm is doing a volume of over $2 million a year and Lori is in the process of capturing a market.

Although her designs added a new look—indeed an entire new category—to the robe business, she is a wiser girl today and knows that that isn't enough. She has to keep one step ahead of the giants in merchandising and promotional ideas. And she's doing it.

What's the secret of her current success? "Don't be afraid of carrying out ideas in which you believe," she said. "I won't let myself be talked out of them in my work or in my personal life."

Lori says she thinks it would be a wonderful thing if top Seventh Avenue designers would design loungewear and stay in the field. But so far she feels they have just gone in for one-shot attempts at loungewear design to spread their names across the clothes board. And she doesn't feel this helps the industry as a whole very much.

Her fashion philosophy is what made her so well-known a personality as an at-home wear designer.

"I believe that at-home wear should be naive, yet have a tiny trace of wickedness. It should be young, but designed so that a woman in her 40s can wear it as well as a girl of 17." And so she was the first to give the robe market a fashion image.

"A short time ago a robe was a robe was a robe," she said. "And at-home wear was either a housedress or a glamorous $500 hostess gown."

Now all that has changed and you can find many at-home fashions that are chic and pretty at moderate prices. And this whole trend is largely due to the influence of the often-bankrupted, now wiser and successful designer, Lori Till.

MINI-CAPTAN in a multicolor watery print (left) has brass buttons marching down the front to a nondefined waistline. Elegant hostess gown with inverted front pleat (right) is in orange crinkle crepe of Dacron and Avril. The draped high neck plunges to a deep back decolletage. These are Lori Till's idea of how a gal should look at home.

successful people, including you, have made it without a high school diploma, though most, like you, received their technical education elsewhere. But I don't agree that high school is totally dull and unimaginative. . . not for the students who dig out the "why" behind the "when, where, and how."

And they have a great deal of help from interested, imaginative teachers!—H.

Half-Dollar Again Circulating

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The half-dollar is circulating again, says the director of the U.S. Mint, Miss Eva Adams. Miss Adams said speculative hoarding of half-dollars, as well as new pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters, has subsided. She said the mint would produce 200 million half-dollars this year.

The 16th-century geographer Gerard Mercator theorized that a southern continent existed, else the world would "topple over amidst the stars." Capt. James Cook, in the 1770s, ended the myth when he charted Australia's coast.

Contrary to popular opinion, high school dropouts do not always become ditch diggers and "grease monkeys". At 19, I am an electronics technician with a service equivalent to a high school diploma, though most, like school diploma and a liberal arts education, for conservative employers who believe that four wasted years are good background for their employees. —HAPPY DROPOUT

DATING ACROSS THE LINES

Dear Helen: My parents won't let me date this boy because he is Spanish. He comes from a good family, has a lot of ambition, does well in school, is a safe driver, well-mannered, clean-cut, well-liked by everyone, even my folks. But they say "No dates" because they feel we will get too serious. We don't want to marry, we just want to enjoy each other's company until we graduate and he goes in the Service. Is there anything wrong in that?—S.T.

Dear Helen: I have only gone with this boy twice, but his mother is dead sure I'm trying to convert to my religion. She wants us to stop dating. Why do parents have to think "marriage" when us kids know better?—DANA

Dear Helen: Please won't you tell parents that we like people for what they are, not how they worship (if they worship), or where they come from, or what nationality they are. Our generation wants to know all races and colors as equals; we don't care whether they're Moslem or Episcopalian, if they've got something interesting to offer, we want them for our friends. That doesn't mean we're going to run right out and marry people whose beliefs and backgrounds are so different we know it would never work. But we can be friends with many we might never want to marry. Why are so many of our parents so afraid?—COLLEGE STUDENT

Dear All of You (And many young people ask these questions):

make you a more attentive student). What's coming? Flexible new designs, stressing plastics, plus lightness, rounded corners, bright colors and adjustability—for instance, desk tops that switch levels, so you write, draw or read at the best angle. . . and movability of chairs and desks for any kind of class grouping. Since $100 million will be spent for new school seating (and furniture), this 1966-67 school year—next year you'll be sitting even prettier.

WHO PAYS FOR WHAT WHEN YOU WED: Among the close to a million teen-age girls who will marry this year, June will no longer be (as it was with mother), the month. Reports show that, today, the "bridal business" rolls on merrily 12 months of the year. . . So here are timely, cold cash, 1967 facts about this "bridal business." Customs are changing about paying for the wedding. . . there's more sharing. Used to be the bride's family paid the bill for almost everything. More common pattern these days is: Her father still pays for all the reception, invitations, flowers, bridesmaids' expenses, bride's trousseau and fees at a church wedding. His father (or he) pays for the engagement ring, wedding ring, marriage license, best man and ushers' expenses, and bachelor dinner. And the groom also pays all the expenses of the wedding trip. However, there are two ways to get around all this—don't get mixed up in the "marriage business" . . . or elope.

NOT A DROP OF THIS IF YOU'RE OVER 20: Actually frowned on for anyone older than 20 is HOJO, the new Howard Johnson bottled softie that was dreamed up for teen-aged fizz slurpers exclusively. Bottled and canned in half a dozen flavors, it's only just been tested out . . . but it really is officially billed, "made for people under 21." Howard Johnson joints across the country will be shipping it over the counter to you—if you're young enough!

SMORGASBORD OF THINGS YOU DIDN'T KNOW: Turning those musical notes into bank notes—Parents who shake their heads in sorrow for what they think are woebegone, shaggy-haired guys strumming yowling guitars, can be shaken to their senses with this dose of fiscal cold water. . . Being a modern minstrel can be one of the quickest ways for youth to hit big earnings—with more than 25 of today's boy minstrels free-and-clear millionaires, right now touting Elvis Presley's supposed to be richest! The lad to be clad in culottes—Culottes have been around—off and on—since mother was a pussycat, but they're coming in with a new spirit in higher fashion lines. . . You'll be seeing these "split skirts" in jumpers, full-length dresses, and suits that rival the new pants suits, including a kind of short-pants culotte suit. Lo, there's another Bardot—Former teen terror but now aging (31) Brigitte Bardot has a kid sister, Marie-Jane, thrilling them in London as a model. A switch on the flaming BB in lots of ways . . . she's securely married to a producer, is the proud mother of a 3-year-old daughter, and loves to wear mod clothes, especially the Victorian slanted stuff. Supposed to be the serious beauty in the family, she's also got the Bardot talent for "dressing up" a fashion photo nicely—in a bikini

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — If Irving Gitlin operated in another field, he would probably be called an experimenter. As it is, he is an independent producer of television documentaries who recently has been trying out other forms, notably drama.

Gitlin, in his four years as an NBC news documentary producer, turned out some exciting and unusual programs — a report on activities in a hospital emergency ward, a controversial public relief situation and a reprise on the war-time decision to drop the atom bomb among them.

Two years ago, he moved out on his own, and his first network effort was, not a documentary, but a hard-hitting, brutal police story on ABC's "Stage 67" called "The Confession." It drew mixed reviews, but Gitlin says that he was experimenting purposefully with the form — "using other techniques to get at reality," he calls it.

Gitlin says that when he first tackled the subject of police authority versus a suspect, he intended to make a documentary film about harsh techniques of interrogation.

"But we found we couldn't really get to the essence of the central theme in the documentary mode," he said, "so we chose the dramatic approach instead."

Next Thursday night, again on "Stage 67," Gitlin will tackle another knotty, delicate subject, "Sex in the Sixties." But this time he will fall back on familiar documentary techniques — interviewing assorted young people and the experts.

Presumably, the subject would lend itself to dramatic treatment, but Gitlin tried that before in a series of daytime specials for women and although they dealt with some serious, important subjects, they all ended up looking and sounding like soap operas.

"It would have been no trouble at all to get explicit sexual material on camera," Gitlin said. "There is profound change in attitudes of permissiveness and in behavior. The problem of the television documentarian is to pick the right tools and I believe that factual documentation is right in this case."

Jackie Gleason and his "Honeymooners" troupe — Art Carney, Shiela MacRae and Jane Kean, have signed for another season with CBS.

NBC's "Today Show" will mark its 15th anniversary on Friday, Jan. 13, with Dave Carroway and John Chancellor, the program's first two hosts, and two "Today's girls, Lee Meriweather and Louise King, as guests.

Church Attendance

BUILDS CHARACTER

SOURCE of VALUES

We can get them from The Old Book — values a-plenty to make the New Year really new. Of course the months, the weeks, the hours are much like the old ones.

We should carry all the good things of yesteryears over into the New Year, and then add more.

Just how will your New Year be New?

We and others, like ourselves, will make the difference. Be more kind and patient in the home circle — then it will be a new house this year. Exhibit a better spirit as you do the old task — and the office, or shop, or kitchen will be a new place for the New Year. Worship God more sincerely and work more in His program of service — then you will have a new church for the New Year.

Only a new Person will make it a New Year.

If A Man
Prays
Right

Can He Live
Wrong?

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Dentures Can Be Restored To Original Function

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: I was quite a blow to have my remaining teeth taken out. But when my false teeth were put in, even though they took awhile to get used to, I was really pleased. Everyone said I looked good. But now, two years later, my friends say my facial expression has changed. There are lines in the corners of my mouth and upper lip, and my front teeth which were very prominent, hardly show when I talk and smile. —Mrs. H. V. J.

I'm answering this letter because it voices concerns often heard from denture wearers: loss of natural teeth is more than a blow to one's pride; it alters facial expression; some say it changes personality, and even their way of life.

Some of these changes are so subtle one isn't always aware of them. You've often heard people say they can eat anything they want with their false teeth. But actually they don't "want" to eat a great many things. Their diet may include everything they desire, but desire has gradually become dependent on and limited by ability to chew and swallow.

The first thing that must be understood is that artificial dentures are NOT "permanent". Put more precisely, tissues that support dentures are continually undergoing change: there is alteration in muscle tone and action; shrinkage of bone and gums; and a natural aging process which varies by the individual, but which is definite and relentless. These tissue changes are usual causes of denture complaints.

How can Mrs. H. V. J. be helped? Her teeth can be restored to their original high degree of function and appearance by a technique known as rebasing; or, if necessary, making new ones. Rebasing is simpler and less costly, corrections are made by taking impressions in the old dentures and adding new pink base material where necessary; building out certain areas; sometimes moving teeth forward and "opening the bite."

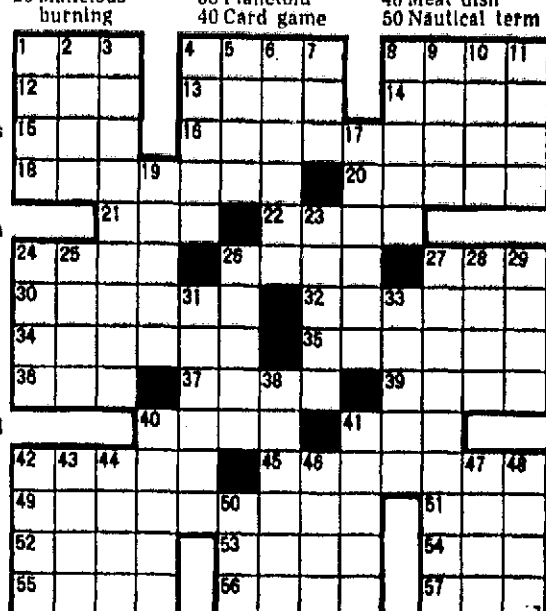

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

Only Bidding Was Wrong

By Oswald & James Jacoby Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

One of the first of the really great partnerships was that of P. Hal Sims and Willard S. Karn. This partnership left a lot to be desired in bidding methods but when the dummy hit the table either Hal or Willard would proceed to make up for any bad bidding by superlative play.

Hal liked to overbid in no-trump. Willard liked to hold back with a big hand until ready to jump to a final contract. This style explains Willard's pass with the South hand, his mere one heart response and his jump to six hearts. It also explains Hal's rebid to two no-trump with a singleton heart and no honor in the spade suit.

The final contract was optimistic but not unreasonable. It was just the method of bidding it that shows experts acting unlike experts.

East won the opening spade lead with the ace and returned the suit. Willard was on lead with the king. He stopped to plan his play. Then

Getting an Education About Birds

By JAMES E. WALTERS
MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — For a guy who was just able to tell a penguin from a pigeon, I've been getting a liberal education about birds. Also squirrels.

It's likely to prove an expensive lesson, too — with me as the pigeon. And one extending into the foreseeable future.

It all began as a family project.

We had noticed a shortage of Japanese beetles and an abundance of birds in our yard during the summer, the birds must be eating the beetle grubs, we concluded, and decided to reward them with a feeding station during the winter months. There also was the hope the beetle-eating birds would stay around for another summer, of course.

A quick inspection of available bird feeders — and their cost — prompted a decision to build one. This came to $2.10 in redwood and screws — plus about five hours of Daddy's time. It was installed on a fence post about four feet outside the kitchen window and filled with 49 cents worth of wild birdseed.

One day passed, and another, with nary a bird. Finally one brave little fellow circled around the feeder and landed on a nearby tree. A couple others joined him. But they flew away without eating.

The next day was the big one. What a joyous moment it was when the wife, breathless, raced upstairs to report that a bird actually had landed on the feeder and was taking tentative pecks at the seed.

We stood there, hand in hand, feeling like parents seeing their first baby together for the first time.

And then the word got around to the feathered world — and to the squirrels in a neighbor's big tree.

Soon the bird feeder looked like the flight deck of a carrier, with birds taking off and landing every minute. I bought five more pounds of seed, this batch with a few more big sunflower seeds that the big blue-colored birds with top knots — blue jays, we were sure — seemed to like.

That was another mistake. The blue-colored birds promptly began pushing aside the rest of the seed to get at the big seeds, knocking smaller seeds all over the ground and creating a mess. For some reason other birds refused to eat much of the stuff on the ground, preferring that in the feeder.

We bought another five pounds of seed.

Then we discovered two squirrels sprawled across the feeder, their noses buried in seed. If chased away, they'd return as soon as we would leave.

Our seed bill mounted daily.

Maybe it would be well to forget the entire project? That's not really fair, said the man selling the bird seed. The birds, conditioned to accepting the free food, will not bother to hunt for and may starve during the remaining cold months.

Charges Egyptian Planes Hit Yemeni

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A leading Yemeni royalist today charged Egyptian planes bombed royalist positions with poison gas, causing scores of casualties.

The charge was made by the royalist deputy foreign minister, Mohammed Abdul Kaddous al Wazir, in a cable to the president of the Foreign Correspondents' Association in Beirut.

He said the bombing occurred Dec. 27 in the Jebel Ayal area.

Arkansas Has 125 Airports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arkansas has 125 airports according to the director of the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, which released figures on the report Tuesday.

The association said that nationwide the figure was 9,379 public and private airports, seaplane bases and heliports, 229 more than were listed last year.

The association said the gain for 1966 did not necessarily mean an increase of that amount in landing places, since many privately owned facilities not previously registered were included in the total for the first time.

Griffis hit the Cardinals with a quick press then as they tried to bring the ball down court. Then Griffiths managed to steal the ball from the Cardinals dribbler at half court to keep the Bobcats hopes alive.

Breakup of Africa Nation Is Averted

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — The chief of Nigeria's central government said Thursday night that the breakup of Africa's most populous nation has been averted by the agreement he reached in Ghana with the country's four regional governors.

"Nigeria will definitely remain united," Lt. Col. Yakubu Gowon, the chairman of the Federal Military Council, said in Accra at the conclusion of the two-day constitutional conference.

However, a communique outlining the agreement reached by Gowon, the four governors and other members of the ruling council made no mention of the major issue dividing the east from the rest of the country: whether Nigeria will be a four-region confederation with a weak central government, demanded by Ojukwu, or whether it will continue as a federation with a strong central government. Gowon, seeking to preserve the federation, has proposed dividing the country into as many as 14 states to minimize tribal and sectional rivalries.

Bobcats Nip Fairview 51-50 in Overtimes

By Larry Don Wright
Hope Star Sports Writer

Hope's Danny Griffiths sank a desperation jump shot with twelve seconds remaining in a second overtime period last night to give the Bobcats a 51-50 edge over the highly favored Fairview Cardinals in the 4AA opener for both teams.

Spirit and determination proved to be the deciding factors for Hope in a game which could easily have gone either way at any time.

The quickness and accurate shooting of the Cardinals allowed them to command as much as a seven-point lead at times through the night, but the Bobcats never let down as they fought back again and again throughout the first three quarters.

However both teams shared the lead through the last period as it switched back and forth never exceeding three points.

Then with 34 seconds left in regulation play with the score knotted at 45-45, the Cards got possession and went into a stall waiting for the last opportunity for the winning basket. However the shot with ten seconds missed its mark and time ran out before another could be taken.

Fairview scored in the early seconds of the first three-minute overtime on a jump shot from the 17 to 45. The Cats muffed their only real opportunity of catching up by missing a field goal which gave Fairview the ball with only one minute to go.

The Cardinals went into a stall offense passing the ball around outside and making no effort to score. It appeared for a moment that Hope's chances were ebbing but with 39 seconds showing on the clock a Cardinal player was called for traveling and the Cats were given one last opportunity.

However Hope had trouble working the ball in for a shot as the Card defense stiffened to put the pressure on the Cats.

Then on a last ditch effort, Griffiths pushed in a long jumper from the free throw line with two Cardinals in his face and only four seconds remaining on the clock.

That allowed the contest to enter another overtime period, with the score tied at 47-47.

The Cards scored first again with a free throw only fifteen seconds into the period. Then ten seconds later Mc Mahan popped in a long basket from the corner to stretch the lead to a big three points, 50-47.

Then of course the visitors went into a stall again. They froze the ball and the game for over a full minute before a Hope foul sent the Cardinals to the free throw line with 1:30 left.

The foul shot was missed and with the rebound Hope had the ball in play once again still down by three points.

ACardinal foul with 56 seconds showing gave Bobcat Luther Shaw a one-and-one attempt. Shaw sank both shots to pull the Cats to within a point, 50-49.

The Bobcats hit the Cardinals with a quick press then as they tried to bring the ball down court. Then Griffiths managed to steal the ball from the Cardinals dribbler at half court to keep the Bobcats hopes alive.

Haiti Story Written on Human Misery

DESCHAPPELLES, Haiti (AP) — The story of present-day Haiti is written on dusty, rutted roads that seem to lead only from one heap of human misery to another. Along them go silent people on foot, on donkeys and mules. In the exhausting heat of noon it's hard to tell who is more resigned, man or beast. The more fortunate ride cars, bicycles, or packed, gaily colored buses bearing the names of saints.

Ragged ribbons of pitted asphalt qualify for the term "highways" only in the same casual sense that "republic" is applied to the fiefdom that is Haiti under Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier, self-proclaimed president for life.

Road and country share the pale consolation that things can't possibly get much worse and that repair is not yet impossible.

In this desert of near-total despair, one road leads to a thriving oasis, the Albert Schweitzer hospital of Deschappelles, where Haitian peasants come to have their ailments and hopes tended.

The hospital is the work of a millionaire-turned-missionary, William Larimer Mellon Jr., 57, grandnephew of Andrew W. Mellon, three times U.S. secretary of the Treasury.

Twenty years ago, Larry Mellon gave up a promising ranching business in Arizona to invest all his resources in an effort to emulate here the work of Dr. Schweitzer in Africa.

Deschappelles offered a natural laboratory for his life work. Once a thriving banana growing center in the Artibonite Valley, potentially one of Haiti's richest agricultural areas, it is densely peopled with needy, backward peasants. Life expectancy at birth is just over 40 years in Haiti and per capita income is about $75 a year.

Getting to Deschappelles from Port au Prince involves a jarring four-hour ride that minimizes bureaucratic interference from the capital even though it actually is only 80 miles away.

Haiti's public health services are hard to find in the interior. Near the town of St. Marc a peasant woman, asked where an ill person could go for attention, pointed over her shoulder and said: "The cemetery."

Actually, ailing folks in the vicinity know of the Mellon hospital and go there if they have two gourdes — 40 cents — to pay for the visit.

No one is turned away from the hospital but it tries to discourage charity. The Haitian prefers to pay if he can.

"A woman once brought in a hopelessly sick horse," recalls Ken Platt, a Pennsylvania State University-trained veterinarian from Cranbury, N.J. "We told her she had to take it away because it would cost us five gourdes to bury a dead horse. She had no money but promised to pay later if we kept it. The horse died and we buried it never expecting to see the owner again. But she came back weeks later with the money."

Thin Casper Has Fat Year

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures/Sports Editor

Billy Casper, a streamlined 180 pounds, had his latest year in golf in 1966. The 35-year-old San Diego native earned $121,944, won his second U.S. Open championship and was acclaimed golfer of the year.

It was the first time Casper, who weighed 220 when he took the 1959 Open, ever led the money winners.

His playoff victory over Arnold Palmer in the Open at San Francisco's Olympic course was the result of fantastic scores. He shot 69, 68, 73, 69 to become the first golfer ever to shoot four subpar rounds in an Open.

Many called the Open the great collapse of Palmer because Arnie was seven strokes ahead of Casper with nine holes to play. With four holes left Palmer led by five shots. But then he collapsed while Casper charged. They tied at 278, two strokes off Ben Hogan's record of 1946.

Palmer even led by two shots after nine holes in the playoff but Casper, shooting a back nine 34, won it, 69-73.

For two years Casper had been on a strange diet which included whole, bear and buffalo meat. He was allergic to certain ordinary foods. His diet helped him lose more than 40 pounds but he retained his fine putting stroke along with a palmaris uncommun to many touring professionals.

Jack Nicklaus, the Columbus, Ohio strongboy of 20, had another fine year, winning $111,419. His big victories came in the British Open and Masters.

In winning the British Open, Nicklaus joined Gene Sarazen, Ben Hogan and Gary Player as the only ones to capture golf's four major titles—Masters, PGA and U.S., and British Opens.

Nicklaus also became the first to win successive Masters when he shot a playoff to, two strokes better than Tommy Jacobs and eight better than Gay Brewer. The three had tied at 283.

Palmer, who finished third in the money race with $110,467, began the year with a victory in the Los Angeles Open and ended his PGA tour by winning the Houston Champions event.

Convict's Claim Is Dismissed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The $50,000 claim filed by a former convict who was wounded by a stray bullet while he was in prison was dismissed Wednesday by the state Claims Commission.

The commission said no provisions existed in the law for allowing the claim to Leroy Jones of Gould, a trusty who was struck in the ankle Sept. 9, 1965, by a bullet fired by another trusty. Jones said the other trusty, Morris Washington, killed another inmate and then shot himself to death.

She said she had become fed up with both after the rash of television football games at the start of the year.

Pat Smith's Outdoor Notebook

By PAT SMITH

The sluggish central Florida air, with no breeze to give it life, soaked through your clothes and pressed in on your hide and there was not a spectator in the gallery whose brow did not have the sheen of heat sweat upon it. You could only guess at the degree of discomfort such heat must be exerting upon the gunners out on the skeet field.

It was the second and final day of the first annual Winchester National Claybird Tournament at River Ranch Acres, east of Lake Wales, and this was the final phase of the revolutionary competition in which trap and skeet skills were being combined for the first time in shooting history.

On the first day, the four five-shooter teams, winners of local and regional elimination competitions at 36 Winchester public shooting centers in 19 states, had fired 1,000 rounds of trap and the Midwest squad from Columbus, O., had come off best with the teams from Chula Vista, Calif. (West); Fort Lauderdale, Fla. (Southeast) and Greene, N.Y. (Northeast) trailing.

Now the skeet segment — also 1,000 rounds, 200 per shooter — was under way and the combined trap and skeet scores would determine the champions. The Ohio team was leading after the trap competition but had performed only indifferently at skeet and a murmur swept the gallery when it was announced that second-place California had a chance to overtake the leaders as did the Northeast squad.

Like the other teams, the Chula Vista squad was made up of shooters representing five classifications ranging from expert to ordinary, the classifications determined by qualifying scores. The Class 5 shooter for the West also was the only woman in the tournament, Mrs. Connie Metcalf, a 25-year-old housewife.

If anyone on this team cracked under the pressure and the heat, it figured to be the slim young woman who had been firing shotguns for only about six months. Another West Coast question mark had to be 19-year-old Jeff Eley of San Diego, representing Class 4.

Now, with the humid heat closing in, Connie Metcalf and Jeff Eley appeared to be the coolest gunners on the field. "Don't worry about them," a grizzled shooter in the gallery said. "I'll give odds on California and those kids right now."

Nobody took him up because Connie was at Station 3. A bird flew from the high house and she swung with it but not quite wide enough and lost it. Then the spectators saw what the old shooter had seen earlier. The tanned young woman turned casually and sauntered almost indifferently to the next station, not a flicker of expression on her face.

Suddenly, with the West Coasters only halfway through their skeet, the Northeast team from Greene, N.Y., finished up and posted a combined trap-skeet score of 1,804 out of a possible 2,000. A cheer went up because Fort Lauderdale and Columbus, O., already had turned in disappointing scores of 1,788 and 1,772, respectively, and were out of it.

Somebody calculated swiftly and said California needed

45 points to catch the Northeast squad.

The shooters from California, taking their time, acted as though they were unaware of either the heat or the mounting pressure. Connie missed several targets in the doubles. So did Jeff. Sixty-seven-year-old Carl Thacker, who in 1937 won the world's open championship at the Grand National with 200x200 score, occasionally lost a bird and only struggled.

Then it was over and the individual scores went up: Connie, 344; Jeff, 359; Carl Thacker, 389; Glenn Eubank, 380; Doug Nurse, 366.

"Team total, 1,818," an official announced. "Tournament winner by 14 points—Chula Vista, California!"

For two years Casper had been on a strange diet which included whole, bear and buffalo meat. He was allergic to certain ordinary foods. His diet helped him lose more than 40 pounds but he retained his fine putting stroke along with a palmaris uncommun to many touring professionals.

Jack Nicklaus, the Columbus, Ohio strongboy of 20, had another fine year, winning $111,419. His big victories came in the British Open and Masters.

In winning the British Open, Nicklaus joined Gene Sarazen, Ben Hogan and Gary Player as the only ones to capture golf's four major titles—Masters, PGA and U.S., and British Opens.

Nicklaus also became the first to win successive Masters when he shot a playoff to, two strokes better than Tommy Jacobs and eight better than Gay Brewer. The three had tied at 283.

house and she swung with it but not quite wide enough and lost it. Then the spectators saw what the old shooter had seen earlier. The tanned young woman turned casually and sauntered almost indifferently to the next station, not a flicker of expression on her face.

Suddenly, with the West Coasters only halfway through their skeet, the Northeast team from Greene, N.Y., finished up and posted a combined trap-skeet score of 1,804 out of a possible 2,000. A cheer went up because Fort Lauderdale and Columbus, O., already had turned in disappointing scores of 1,788 and 1,772, respectively, and were out of it.

Somebody calculated swiftly and said California needed

45 points to catch the Northeast squad.

The shooters from California, taking their time, acted as though they were unaware of either the heat or the mounting pressure. Connie missed several targets in the doubles. So did Jeff. Sixty-seven-year-old Carl Thacker, who in 1937 won the world's open championship at the Grand National with 200x200 score, occasionally lost a bird and only struggled.

Then it was over and the individual scores went up: Connie, 344; Jeff, 359; Carl Thacker, 389; Glenn Eubank, 380; Doug Nurse, 366.

"Team total, 1,818," an official announced. "Tournament winner by 14 points—Chula Vista, California!"

Some Income Areas Excluded From Taxes

By RAY DE CRANE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A dividend received on your life insurance policy is not taxable on your annual income tax return. A cash dividend received on stock you own is taxable.

Contradictory? Not necessarily. But it does indicate the confusion that exists and the need for an understanding of taxable and nontaxable income.

The insurance dividend is not taxable because it is a partial return of your premium payment. The dividend on stock is taxable because it is money earned on your investment.

In general, all funds you receive in the course of a year must be reported on your income tax return unless such funds are specifically exempt from tax by law. Income from some sources is fully taxable, and from others partially taxable, and from a third source completely exempt.

This income is TAXABLE: Periodic alimony and certain separation payments; awards; prizes; back pay; bonuses; business net income; commissions on sales; director's fees; gain from the sale of property; gambling net winnings; interest received from such sources as savings accounts, life insurance dividends left on deposit, notes, mortgages, land contracts, corporate bonds and savings bonds; jury duty fees; notary fees; income from partnerships; rental net income; salary and wages; severance pay; supplemental unemployment benefits and tips.

This income is NONTAXABLE: Accident and health insurance proceeds; bequests; casualty insurance proceeds; disability and death benefits; gifts and inheritances; interest on tax-free securities; life insurance proceeds paid on the death of the insured; military allowances; mustering-out pay; payments to dependents of military personnel; Railroad Retirement Act pensions; rental or housing allowance furnished a clergyman; scholarship and fellowship grants; unemployment compensation paid by states; veterans' bonuses and workmen's compensation benefits.

Income from these sources is partially taxable subject to specific rules and handling: Annuities; dividends on stock; gain on the sale of a residence if you are 65 or older; pensions and sick pay. Proper accounting of these partially taxable items will be explained in later chapters.

(NEXT: How to handle rental income.)

Texas Western Reaches Top

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The rise to power of Texas Western and the fall from the throne by UCLA. That was the story of college basketball for 1966.

Coached by Don Haskins, the unassuming Texas Western Miners from El Paso won the national collegiate championship by upsetting Adolph Rupp's mighty Kentucky Wildcats 72-65 in the NCAA final last March at College Park, Md.

Just as they were against Oklahoma City, Cincinnati, Kansas and Utah in earlier tournament games, the Miners were underdogs against Kentucky, top-ranked in the final Associated Press poll.

Inspired play by 6-foot-10 Bobby Joe Hill and David Lattin sparked the Miners to a convincing upset over Kentucky for their first national championship. Hill got 20 points and Lattin 16 compared to 19 each for Kentucky's Louie Dampier and Pat Riley.

The turning point came on two quick baskets by Hill that broke a 9-9 tie. Kentucky never caught up.

Most folks thought the semifinal between Kentucky and the No. 2 Duke Blue Devils would produce the champion. Duke, which had started UCLA downhill with two decisive victories over the Bruins early in the season, lost to Kentucky 83-79, but won third place by edging Utah 79-77.

UCLA had been picked in the pre-season AP poll to become the first team to win three straight national championships, but the Bruins lost their Pacific 8 crown to Oregon State and didn't even qualify for the NCAA tourney.

Brigham Young, runner-up to Utah for the Western Athletic Conference title, won the New York National Invitation tourney by defeating New York University 97-84. Kentucky Wesleyan took the NCAA college division title with a 54-51 victory over Southern Illinois. Oklahoma Baptist routed George Southern 88-59 for the NAIA title in the other small college national tournament.

The Philadelphia 76ers, with Wilt Chamberlain, thwarted the Boston Celtics' bid for a 10th straight Eastern Division title in the NBA, the major league of pro basketball. But the Celtics, led by big Bill Russell who later was named coach, bounced back to win the playoffs for their eighth straight NBA crown.

Cazzie Russell of Michigan's Big Ten champions was named the college player of the year and headed The Associated Press 1966 All-America team. Clyde Lee of Vanderbilt, Dave Schellhase of Purdue, Louie Dampier of Kentucky and Dave Bing of Syracuse completed the first team.

Carol Mann by one stroke with a 297, it was Sandra's first victory as a golf pro.

Mrs. Don Carner, the former JoAnne Gunderson, won the Women's Amateur crown for the fourth time, beating Mrs. J. Douglas Streitt on the 41st hole.

Heroes of American Journalism

BY KAREN POTTER HACK

This is the 13th in a series of profiles on "Heroes of American Journalism." These features were prepared by the Florida Press Assn. and published in the Florida Press, the association's monthly magazine.

AFTER THE CIVIL WAR, when political leaders and military figures were silent, a dynamic Southern newspaper editor waged a courageous battle against both tangible and intangible forces that were suffocating the South.

Newspaperman Henry W. Grady was acutely concerned that economic chaos, misery and crushed pride had plunged the South into a dangerous intellectual and moral vacuum as well as a haven of lawlessness and corruption. Yet it would be well over 20 years before Grady's voice would be heard through the shadow of gloom and despair.

Grady began his career immediately after college by fighting the forces of corruption as editor of the Rome (Ga.) Courier. However, his position as editor was short-lived. Despite the publishers' orders to leave local politics alone, Grady continued exposing corruption and soon was forced to leave the Courier.

Financially comfortable from a sizable inheritance, Grady immediately bought the town's two other papers, merged them and continued his relentless attack—denouncing corrupt politics and his former publisher.

Such editorial courage usually leads to respect and acclaim. But in Rome it was considered a disgraceful outrage and the new paper soon disappeared.

Undaunted, 21-year-old Grady headed for Atlanta and in 1871 established the Atlanta Herald, using the last of his inheritance. This new paper also failed and Grady then went to New York, landing a job with the New York Herald as Atlanta correspondent. He continued as Herald correspondent for the next eight years.

During this time the South still lay in ruin, idly wallowing defeat, while its leaders were silent. Grady restlessly watched for his opportunity.

As a newspaperman Grady possessed many talents along with his editorial courage. He had an uncanny news sense, sharp analytical powers and the rare ability to speak directly to the popular mind in whatever he wrote. An important factor, too, was his charm—nine tenths eager boyishness—lasted throughout his life.

It was undoubtedly this charm that persuaded Cyrus W. Field to lend Grady $20,000 in 1879, enabling the fiery young journalist to buy a quarter interest in the Atlanta Constitution. Now Grady's opportunity had come; he could talk to his beloved South and be heard. In editorials and news stories alike the Constitution repeated Grady's message:

The South should forget the past and begin to build its future. Diversify crops, develop local resources, promote manufacturing, adjust to the new status of the Negro, repeated Grady.

Soon he was spreading his gospel in the form of oratory, making speeches to audiences throughout the country about the South. And his voice was heard. Before Grady was silent, the South began to stir; it began to come alive and finally to leave the past.

While Henry Grady's words alone couldn't erase the bitter emotional scars of the postwar South, the sound principals that this dynamic editor forcefully introduced are recognized today as the essential roots of the South's rebirth. Publishers' Auxiliary.

SLIM PICKINGS in the 1966 cotton harvest put total production at its lowest since 1948. Growers voted to continue marketing quotas for their crop, provided through the federal program that enabled them to reduce acreage sharply from totals planted in recent years. Bad weather and insects cut the yield below earlier expectations, and a sharp reduction in surplus stocks is expected.

C of C Sets Up 1967 Committees

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce a change in the committee structure was put into effect that will provide an opportunity for more flexibility and efficient operation of the organization, according to Dr. Lester Sitzes, president for 1967.

Under the new plan the organization is set up in 4 divisions, each headed by a vice-president. The new divisions and vice-presidents heading them are as follows: Business Development, Guy Grigg; Community Development, George Frazier; Legislative and Public Affairs, Harold Hendrix and Organization, James Morrow.

The Business Development Division, with Guy Grigg as its head, has all of the committees appointed and some of them will be making reports at the next regular meeting of the Board. Following is a list of committee chairmen and members under this division:

INDUSTRY — W. H. Gunter Jr., Chairman, Arthur Streech, Douglas Drake, Frank McLarty, Wesley Huddleston.

AGRICULTURE — Jerry Alexander, Chairman, Autrey Wilson, Arch Wylie, Blant Jones, Lloyd Hendrix.

RETAIL — Bill Morris, Chairman, David Brown, Roy Wray Barry Brown.

TOURISM — Clyde Fouse, Chairman, Perry Campbell, Melvin Thrash, Carter Russell, Velora Bright.

Chairmen and members of other committees will be announced as soon as they are completed.

Some Relief Regardless of Tax Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Regardless of whether U.S. taxpayers are hit with an income tax increase this year, there is a chance they will get some relief from the actual labor of figuring the tax to pay in future years.

The House Ways and Means Committee, it was learned today, has agreed to a Treasury request to consider later this year legislation for a simplified tax return that would abate some of the arithmetical agonies of mid-April.

The Treasury is experimenting this year in the southeastern part of the country with an optional return form that would to some extent combine the actual return with the instructions for preparing it, so that a taxpayer, by answering a series of questions, would arrive at his tax liability.

Details of what may be proposed later this year apparently still are to be settled, but one source said, "We think we can cut a lot of lines out of old Form 1040."

Conway Man on Merit Council

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval Faubus Thursday appointed Ed Speaker of Conway, an insurance agent, to the state Merit System Council.

Speaker will fill the vacancy originally created when it was discovered that J. C. Mitchell of Little Rock was serving illegally. Only Wednesday the governor announced that he was withdrawing his appointment of Rep. Lloyd George to the council because he was ineligible under council rules.

Speaker is a former Faulkner County sheriff.

Johnson Doesn't Like His Portrait

WASHINGTON (AP) — The artist whose commissioned portrait of President Johnson was rejected by the First Family says he had to work with a sleeping subject and turn aside Mrs. Johnson's suggestions on how to paint the work.

And now, says artist Peter Hurd, he's lost interest in a second and smaller portrait he was doing of the President.

But even if the Johnsons don't like the first effort, there apparently is a demand for it from a museum and private collectors.

News of the turnaround became public Thursday and was confirmed by Mrs. Johnson's press secretary, Elizabeth Carpenter, who said the President "didn't like it and neither did she (Mrs. Johnson)."

The portrait was unveiled for the Johnsons last spring. The Washington Post said Mrs. Johnson told Hurd that a stormy scene which ensued was so unforgettable she didn't expect ever to endure anything so grim again.

Hurd, known for his southwestern landscapes and portraits, said from his New Mexico ranch the fact that he turned down changes suggested by the Johnsons could have been responsible for their rejecting the portrait.

"I just couldn't follow their suggestions and at the same time not lose quality in the painting," Hurd said.

He said Mrs. Johnson wanted it reduced in size from 40 inches by 48 inches to 30 inches by 36 inches.

"She was most kind, most cordial," Hurd said, "but some of her ideas I just couldn't carry out, like making the Capitol dome misty and hazy."

The sharply-defined Capitol is midway down the left side of the painting, in a scale putting it far behind Johnson. The President is standing with a book in his hand and is depicted from about the waist up. He wears a serious expression on the three-quarter view of his face.

Hurd said he was forced to work mostly from photographs because he was permitted only one 30-minute sitting with Johnson — and that when the President "was terribly fatigued from a very busy week in Washington" and fell asleep, said the artist, "He was terribly sleepy, dead beat, bushed."

Crash Victim Just Happy to Be Alive

By MIKE BEAN

LEADVILLE, Colo. (AP) — "The best thing about my birthday is that I'll be alive," said Lorraine Rosengren, who will be 48 Saturday.

"I can't help but smile," she said Thursday as she looked up from the cast covering her broken left arm.

Mrs. Rosengren was one of five persons, including her husband, Orville, 50, and the couple's son, John, 25, who were rescued by a helicopter from the windswept slopes of 14,037-foot Mt. Sherman.

They survived a night of 30-below-zero temperatures, blowing snow and howling winds after their chartered twin-engine Cessna ran into heavy overcast, hit some severe downdrafts and plowed into the mountain.

"We were lucky to come out alive," said Rosengren, an avid skier who raises prize quarter horses on his farm near St. Charles, Ill. "We had two bottles of Scotch with us that helped us to withstand the cold. It got down to at least 30 below zero. We couldn't have lasted much longer."

Rosengren and his son suffered bruises, Charles Budde, 22, of St. Charles, a family friend, suffered a dislocated shoulder which was put back in place by the others during the 20 hours they remained alone on the mountain.

The pilot, Gifford Williamson, 62, of Denver, escaped injury. The helicopter that made the rescue was piloted by Bob Greeno, 35, of Broomfield, Colo., an employee of the Public Service Co. of Colorado.

Greeno was on a routine flight checking power lines over the mountains when he heard a radio call asking if there was a helicopter in the area.

"One plane had spotted the downed aircraft," said Greeno. "We were able to fly right up the ridge pretty much directly to him."

Greeno made two trips to bring all five down to the heliport at Leadville.

"There was a heavy ground blizzard and a snow squall was moving in with 50-mile-an-hour winds," said Greeno. "We got off the pass up there at the last possible minute."

The Rosengrens and Budde had arrived in Colorado Wednesday for a winter holiday at Aspen, where they have often skied.

Rosengren said the flight from Denver, 75 miles northeast of Mt. Sherman, to Aspen was calm until sudden air turbulence "tossed us around like a cork."

His physician decided against removing the slug for the present, saying an operation might prove more injurious.

Blizzard Hits Plains States, Heavy Snow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A wind-lashed blizzard roared into the northern Plains states today, dumping up to 12 inches of new snow on the Duluth area.

The depth of snow on the ground in Duluth was 27 inches. The storm, which came down the eastern slope of the Rockies Friday, was pushed by winds of 40 and 50 miles an hour. Temperatures in many areas fell far below zero.

Blizzard or heavy-snow warnings were issued by local weather bureaus for parts of North Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Wisconsin and Michigan.

The Weather Bureau in Chicago said 4 to 8 inches of new snow could be expected in parts of the eight states.

The Duluth snowfall came in 12 hours. At Alpena and Souda, Mich., the snowfall totaled five inches in six hours. Salt Lake City got five inches.

Hazardous - drifting warnings followed the heavy-snow reports and later bitter cold moved into the snow belt.

At 1 a.m., the reading at Glasgow, Mont., was -14. At Key West, Fla., it was 72, the nation's high.

Freezing rain or sleet fell over sections of southern Michigan and showers and thunderstorms raked areas southward to the Gulf.

Some Rocky Mountain passes were blocked for a time by snowdrifts. At Afton, Wyo., a search was under way in an area where a 40-foot deep snow slide may have covered a logging contractor.

'Strangler' of Boston Case to Trial

By SID HURLBURT

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A mental patient who claims to be the Boston strangler is scheduled for trial next week on a variety of charges not related to the stranglings.

Defense Atty. F. Lee Bailey says his client, Albert DeSalvo, is the man who strangled 11 women in eastern Massachusetts between June 1962 and January 1964.

The Associated Press learned that the defense plans to identify DeSalvo as the strangler in next week's trial in Middlesex County Superior Court.

A grand jury indicted the 34-year-old house painter-handyman in 1965 on 16 counts of robbery, assault, burglary and sex offenses.

DeSalvo has been confined to the Massachusetts State Hospital at Bridgewater since shortly after his arrest in 1964. After his indictment DeSalvo was adjudged mentally unfit to stand trial.

Last June, DeSalvo testified at a Superior Court hearing that he believed himself competent to stand trial. Psychiatric testimony was divided, but a judge ordered the trial to proceed.

Bailey, who successfully defended Dr. Sam Sheppard in his second murder trial and Dr. Carl Coppolino in his recent New Jersey murder trial, took DeSalvo's case after the man was committed to the hospital's special center for sex offenders.

Although DeSalvo has said repeatedly he is the strangler who held Boston in a grip of near panic for 18 months, the state has said only that it lacks evidence sufficient to convict anyone of the slayings.

The stranglings began on June 14, 1962. Within 18 months 11 women living within a 26-mile radius of Boston were raped and strangled.

The killer used a nylon stocking or kerchief and left the death instrument arranged in a bizarre bow about the victims' necks.

Bandit Meter Proved Costly

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — William W. Donahoe, 21, paid $119 recently for two parking meters he destroyed after one of them gobbled his dime without lowering the violation flag.

Police officials accepted his payment and no charges were filed.

Crying Shame That Men Who Don't Cry Don't Know What They Miss

By MARY ANITA LASETER
STAR FEATURE WRITER

News Item: Scientists say that men don't cry enough.

Could this be true? It certainly isn't incredible when a little thought is given to the fact that a man is expected to remain stoic and immovable, emotion-wise, whereas under the same or similar conditions a flood of tears from the eyes of a woman is nothing unusual.

Is that really fair? Are tears a sign of weakness or femininity? No, indeed, say men of science, who stress it would be a good idea for men not to feel obligated to resist crying. The truth about tears was revealed in an article in "Grit," a weekly paper published in Williamsport, Pa.

Many beneficial effects are obtained by crying, and we aren't including the reduction of the male to helplessness with the tears of wife or sweetheart. Every woman knows the wonderful relaxed feeling after "having a good cry." Aside from doing wonders for the nerves, tears protect the nasal passages from infection.

Ashley Montagu, a distinguished anthropologist, explains the importance of "tear protection." In this way, the mucus membrane of the nose dries in the process of breathing so that it no longer secretes mucus, which contains a bacteria-killing enzyme. But tears leak into the nose and moisten the membranes, thus creating a potent resistance to infection.

What about the "crocodile tears" shed by many? Is there any way to tell whether tears are sincere or merely "put on"? At the moment science hasn't conquered that hurdle yet, but it probably won't be long before tests can be made to determine whether tears are genuine or not.

Detectives are particularly anxious to find out if a suspect is telling the truth in expressing sorrow with tears. This much is known already. Tears shed under one circumstance differ from the composition of those shed under another. So, the idea of examining the tears of persons in criminal cases makes sense.

The emotional aspect of tears is a fascinating study for a student of human nature. Of course, it is realized that there is a physical reason for tears at times, but from the psychological angle tears present a more complicated picture.

Though some think that tears are just drops of salty water, they are, in fact, a complex chemical solution. Even more complex is the reason some people have for shedding them. "Reasons" range from sorrow to pleasure to anger. But through it all, one sure fact remains.

Tears are usually from the eyes of a woman, not a man. That's a "crying shame." He doesn't know what he's missing.

Arkansan Charged in Kidnaping

DETROIT (AP) — U. S. Atty. Lawrence Gubow filed charges of murder and kidnaping Thursday against two men, one from North Little Rock, Ark., in connection with the deaths of two Michigan women.

Charged were William T. Banks, 23, of North Little Rock, and Robert L. Gagne, 28, of Ecorse, Mich., who were the subjects of a widespread search in the West before their capture at El Paso, Tex. They are jailed in El Paso.

Gubow said the two probably would be tried in Nevada where they are charged with kidnaping the credit manager of a casino before facing the charges he filed.

The charges stem from the fatal shooting of Eileen Alex, 19, of Allen Park, Mich., and the strangulation of Mrs. Janet Stewart, 22, of Dearborn Heights, Mich. Miss Alex's body was found near South Bend, Ind., and Mrs. Stewart's was discovered in Dry Ridge, Ky.

Banks and Gagne are former inmates of the Arkansas penitentiary.

Sylvester Leaves Dept. of Defense

By BOB HORTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur Sylvester, an exponent of the government's "right to lie" in case of national peril, leaves a trail of controversy as he steps down as chief spokesman for the far-flung defense establishment.

The White House announced the resignation of the ruddy-faced, affable Sylvester Thursday. President Johnson named Phil G. Goulding, 45, currently No. 2 man in the Pentagon news setup, as his successor.

Sylvester's unexpected departure from the pressure-packed role as the Defense Department's top information man immediately raised questions:

Is he resigning because his boss, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, also may be about to quit?

Or is it because of the recent controversy over U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam civilians?

Neither, said the one-time shipping clerk and former newsmen.

"I'd just like to be my own man for a while," Sylvester said.

Officially, Sylvester, 65, is called assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, but he readily acknowledges being called other names during a sometimes stormy six years of directing the flow of official announcements from the Pentagon.

During the Cuban crisis of 1962, Sylvester said controlled news of government actions were a part of the weaponry used to force the dismantling of Soviet missiles on the island country.

"In the kind of world we live in," Sylvester said, "the generation of news by actions taken by the government becomes one weapon in a strained situation." He compounded controversy later by asserting that the government had an inherent "right to lie" to save itself when faced with disaster.

"That to me seems basic," Sylvester declared.

Many newspaper editors and television and radio commentators disputed his judgment on grounds that an informed public is basic to a democratic form of government.

Goulding, Sylvester's successor as of Feb. 3, was a member of the Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer's Washington bureau 15 years before his appointment as deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs in April 1965.

A native of San Francisco and a 1943 graduate of Hamilton College in Clinton, N.Y., Goulding is described by co-workers as a "decisive" public relations man who has a "great knack for getting to the heart of a problem."

Until his appointment to the $27,000 a year post is confirmed by Congress, Goulding said he didn't want to make a big production with public statements.

"Just say I'm honored to have served under Arthur Sylvester — that should be controversial — and I'm honored President Johnson has chosen me to be his successor," he said.

Ground War Pace Upped in Viet Nam

By ROBERT TUCK'AN

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — U. S. and Vietnamese marines pushed through forbidding mangrove swamps of the Mekong Delta today and met only slight resistance in the first big American thrust into the delta.

A combined allied force of about 4,000 landed by sea and helicopter Friday 55 miles due south of Saigon on the Thanh Phu Peninsula. Only small, sniper contacts with the enemy were reported.

The operation was the biggest amphibious landing of the war and marked the first major deployment of American troops in the rice field and water-logged delta, where an estimated 100,000 Viet Cong dominate large sections.

As the pace of the ground war quickened after a week's lull, Communist forces in the central highlands unleashed a heavy mortar and ground assault early today against the same airfield at Pleiku where an attack two years ago touched off U. S. air bombings of North Vietnam and led to the massive buildup of American forces in South Vietnam.

A U. S. spokesman said the Communists unloaded more than 100 mortar rounds on Holloway Airfield close to Pleiku City about 240 miles northeast of Saigon. Earlier reports had said 200 to 300 mortar rounds were fired.

The spokesman said 10 enemy soldiers penetrated the airfield and inflicted "light damage" to helicopters and small observation planes. He added that U. S. casualties were light in the 45-minute attack, but several buildings were damaged.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported the Communists also shelled a nearby Vietnamese airbase early today apparently in a diversionary attack. A spokesman said the Communists inflicted heavy casualties on a regional force platoon defending the Chu Hanh airfield near Holloway and killed four Vietnamese civilian dependents in a shelling of an Army Engineer camp nearby.

Would Merge Mental Health Programs

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Governor-elect Winthrop Rockefeller said Thursday he thought more study should be given to proposals to combine all mental health and mental retardation programs under one agency.

Rockefeller said he was convinced that Arkansas had the opportunity to create a model program that would help the nation in developing health services.

He made the remarks in a statement read at a meeting of the Citizens Implementation Committee on Mental Health, which was formed by two citizens groups who prepared plans for state activities for the mentally retarded and mentally ill.

The group's major recommendation was creation of a new state department of mental health to have responsibility for all mental health programs in the state. The department would be responsible to an advisory board to be called the state Board of Mental Health.
